

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention relates to a method of extracting nucleic acid or protein, in which multi-layer dendorimers are formed on the surface of fine particles, amino radicals for capturing nucleic acid or protein are formed on the surface of these dendorimers, and nucleic acid or protein is extracted using these amino radicals. The present invention can greatly and easily increase the recovery ratio of nucleic acid or protein.